Sociation, an organization of masters and mates to which the owners have been giving their support.

It was decided earlier in the year to give financial aid to the officers association and to cooperate fully with it for a period to end this month. It is understood that the committee will debate the continuance of this policy throughout next year.

Other questions to be considered are the proposed action to prevent the pollution of navigable waters by oil burning ships, the work of the standing committee on the managing agent agreement and the ship subsidy bill.
